WE GUARANTEE

That all seeds sold by us shall prove to be as represented, to the extent that should they not do so, we will replace them, or send other seeds to the same value. But we cannot guarantee the crop any further than the above offer, as there are so many causes which operate unfavorably in the germination of seeds in a tropical climate, over which we have no control. Among the causes of failure may be mentioned unfavorable weather which is one of the most important. The soil may be in proper condition when the seed is planted, but the weather which follows may be too wet, which will cause the seed to rot; or it may be too hot and dry, which destroys the germs before it is sown. The soil may also be unfavourable for the variety of seed planted. And lastly, the seeds may be and are frequently destroyed by vermin of various kinds. Such crop losses are beyond the power of man to prevent and for which we cannot be responsible.

MARRIAGE.

At Trinity Cathedral, Shanghai, on the 18th November, 1889, by the Rev. H. C. Hodges, M.A., WILLIAM WHITFIELD, of Shanghai, (formerly of Liverpool), to JANE LOUISE, eldest daughter of the late John Kipling, Esq., of Hackney, London.

The Daily Press.

HONGKONG, NOVEMBER 25TH, 1889.

The reports of the Commissioners of Customs at Canton, Kowloon, and Lappa, on the opium trade for the March quarter of the present year, suggest that in South China smuggling still extensively prevails. After the remarkable judgment given by the Supreme Court on Friday in the case of TANG MAN and others, appellants, v. BAXXON, respondent, it is likely to still more extensively prevail. The opium in question in that case, according to the evidence, consisted of the contents of a number of chests which had been broken up for convenience of carriage to the Opium Farmer's establishment at Mongkok. It is held by the Supreme Court that this is not an infringement of section 6 of Ordinance 22 of 1887, which prohibits the possession of opium in quantities less than one chest. The ruling of the Court would apply equally to a quantity of opium exceeding that contained in one chest, packed up in small parcels with a view to being smuggled into China. The smugglers, therefore, have, henceforth, nothing to fear from the Police of Hongkong, and have only their ancient enemies the revenue officers of China to deal with. Thus one of the principal objects of the Ordinances is defeated and the Government is for the time being rendered unable to carry out in its integrity its engagement towards China with reference to the prevention of the smuggling of opium from this colony. The Government may perhaps think it worth while to carry the case by appeal to the Privy Council, but the simplest plan would be to pass at once a short amending Ordinance curing the defect in the principal measure which has now been discovered, assuring the judgment of the Court to be correct. The judgment is certainly not based on the principle that interdictio bona de re magis valit quam per se. What is evident by the Ordinance by quantity less than one chest is quantities less than one unbroken chest. If for any reason it were deemed desirable to prevent the importation of cloth in lengths of less than twenty yards it could not be held in common sense, though it might be according to the judgment of the Supreme Court, that a length of twenty yards cut up into smaller lengths would still be a length of twenty yards. A chest of opium divided up into smaller quantities is held by the Court to be still a chest, notwithstanding the definition that "chest of opium means the package, with the opium therein, such as is usually imported by merchants in the Colony." For the present the judgment must be taken as determining the law of the colony, and persons interested in smuggling will doubtless be highly delighted.

Mr. HARRIS, the Commissioner of Customs at Lappa, in his report gives a quotation from an article which appeared in our columns in which we suggested that some of the raw opium clandestinely conveyed out of the colony was prepared some where on Chinese territory and brought back here for sale. The Commissioner says: "Why after such opium has been once successfully smuggled into China the advantage of evaded duty and him it is necessary should be abandoned, and the owner's loss by running the gauntlet of the Farmer's well-paid detective, does not seem very clear. If opium in a prepared state, as is stated by the Daily Press, frequently carried into Hongkong, it seems much more probable that it is drug prepared at Macao. Is this possible?" It is not impossible, but Mr. Harris's remarks do not cause us to think it improbable that some of it is prepared on Chinese territory. The price at which prepared opium is now sold in this colony is very high; what the price may be in the districts on the mainland where this clandestine trade is supposed to be carried on we do not know, but as there is no monopoly it is probably considerably lower than it is here. That opium prepared in Chinese territory was brought back for sale in Hongkong before the Opium Convention came into force was ascertained with tolerable certainty when the matter was being officially investigated, and seeing that the smugglers are still able to some extent to carry on their operations the presumption is that the business runs more or less in the hands of the Opium Farmer at Macao has to pay a large sum for the privilege of boiling, the smugglers pay nothing, unless as well to the native officers, and their profits on prepared opium which they bring back here will be proportionately larger and consequently the inducement greater.

The Macao Farmer has been assured by Mr. HARRIS in his report, and by Mr. McKEAN in his summary, to be interested in clandestine trade, the evidence on which they chiefly rely being that of the Hongkong Farmer. It would be interesting to know how the Macao man would defend himself, and whether he would have any thing in the nature of a de queso to urge. However this may be, the fact remains that a good deal of smuggling undoubtedly goes on in this neighbourhood, and the opium must come either from Hongkong or Macao. In a recent case at the Police Court Mr. FRANCIS, who is standing Counsel to the Opium Farmer, but on the occasion in question had to appear on the other side for older clients, made a very sweeping assertion as to the effect of the present system in the encouragement of smuggling from this colony into China. That statement cannot of course be accepted as evidence against the Opium Farmer or his nominees, but it will be the duty of the Government, when the lease of the Farm expires, to revise the conditions and make them such that they shall offer neither encouragement nor loophole to China.

The Chinese, however, have a right to defend themselves, and whether he would have any thing in the nature of a de queso to urge. However this may be, the fact remains that a good deal of smuggling undoubtedly goes on in this neighbourhood, and the opium must come either from Hongkong or Macao. In a recent case at the Police Court Mr. FRANCIS, who is standing Counsel to the Opium Farmer, but on the occasion in question had to appear on the other side for older clients, made a very sweeping assertion as to the effect of the present system in the encouragement of smuggling from this colony into China. That statement cannot of course be accepted as evidence against the Opium Farmer or his nominees, but it will be the duty of the Government, when the lease of the Farm expires, to revise the conditions and make them such that they shall offer neither encouragement nor loophole to China.

The Chinese, however, have a right to defend themselves, and whether he would have any thing in the nature of a de queso to urge.
